

City of Sequim Human Services Funding Request For Proposals

DEADLINE – January 16, 2019 4:00 p.m.

PURPOSE

Use strategic goals and partnership opportunities to address Sequim/Eastern Clallam County issues surrounding sheltering, physical and mental health, food insecurity and substance use disorders.

The City of Sequim is requesting proposals for Human Services programs and services for the period of 2019-2021.

The City is seeking a single proposal for program services for a three-year funding cycle (2019-2021) for $75,000 per year. The City will also consider a proposal that would fit identified goals on a more long-term basis that may include a capital project. The City will consider partnering on capital project proposals; City participation may include purchase and improvement of real estate and pursuing other funding/grant opportunities if other elements of this RFP are also met.

For example:

A 3-year proposal for program services, $75,000 each year.

or

A 3-year phased proposal of $75,000 per year for program services. Phased proposals should include development of a capital project proposal that will result in improved efficiency and increased service delivery to the community. Capital project proposals should also include a business plan that discusses a financing plan and ability for implementation in year three of the initial contract period.

Proposals will be judged for their potential to coordinate community assets (agency and community volunteer time, staff and other resources), implement critical strategies that achieve measurable results, and make a strong argument on how the results of their program align with the Council goals and prioritized areas of need.

BACKGROUND

The City of Sequim historically budgets an annual amount for Human Services funding. The City will consider a multi-year commitment within this proposal, with a limit of three years. Council priorities identified in 2017 instructed City Staff to “Develop a plan regarding focused service areas touching on community issues surrounding mental health needs, substance use, and homelessness. Coordinate with regional partners and evaluate current Human Services priorities.”

In 2018, the Council also adopted Guiding Principles to guide the process of evaluation and assessment in fulfilling their stated goal.

Guiding Principles for Human Services Funding

- Focus on outcomes and results rather than on the identity of the provider
- Encourage provider collaboration to achieve the best value
- Collaborate with all funding sources to maximize funding investments
- Consider prioritizing funding for areas that have been identified as the greatest need for the citizens of the City of Sequim

Identified areas of need, areas of collaboration, and community opportunities were communicated by the stakeholder and public group meetings. Overarching themes of developing resource hubs, utilizing the concepts of navigators, and prevention and/or education initiatives also were identified in both meetings.

This RFP process seeks to increase resources and impact around targeted community social and health priorities. These priorities were identified in the Clallam County Health Assessment and City of Sequim sponsored community and stakeholder conversations on the topics of physical and mental health, food insecurity, substance use and sheltering.

ELIGIBLE APPLICANTS

Applicants must be 1) private non-profit 501 (c)(3) entities, 2) public non-profit entities, 3) Indian tribes, or 4) any combination thereof. Nothing in this section is intended to prevent an applicant from using volunteers, but the named applicant will be responsible for ensuring compliance with all contract terms. Applicants offering specialized services, e.g., mental health or physical health services, must be lawfully authorized to provide such services, and have and maintain all relevant licenses, training, insurance, and other requirements as specified through federal, Washington State, and local regulatory agencies.

SCOPE OF WORK

Identified areas of need are best addressed in a collective and collaborative manner due to the complexity of the problems. Proposals should identify partnerships and collaborations and how those intend to address service gaps present in current service delivery models represented in the Sequim area. Proposals must address the following identified areas of need, identified needs are ordered by rank prioritization from the stakeholder and public input process.

- Sheltering
- Substance Use Disorders
- Food Insecurity
- Mental Health
- Physical Health

Applicants are expected to submit concise, but comprehensive, proposals. Proposals should outline how the proposal fits within the City Council's goal and guiding principles, while addressing the areas of need. Proposals that include a capital project component should also identify approximate total cost and any funding leverages. Proposals with a capital project component should also discuss increased efficiency in service delivery that results from support of the capital project.

Collaborative proposals should identify one organization as the main applicant and point of contact and identify any supporting organizations necessary to achieve the proposal's goals and outcomes. Proposals should also completely describe each organization's role, service area, and success measures. This information will be compiled and submitted to the City of Sequim in a semi-annual report. Successful applicants should expect to meet with City staff to discuss the report and identify improvement opportunities.
